

So it's mid-summer and you had the best of intentions to do something about your mosquito control but life happens and for whatever reason you didn't really do anything about the mosquitoes in your yard. Don't worry even though it is definitely the best idea to start your mosquito control regiment early, it's never too late to get relief from those pesky blood suckers.

I'm Melissa from northlineexpress and today I want to introduce you to our personal mosquito repellent products that will have the mosquitoes running, well I guess they'd be flying, away rather than them chasing you back in side. I've introduced you to mosquito traps and misters earlier in our reclaim your backyard series and while they are a very effective way to control mosquitoes they only protect you when you're at home or where ever you are using the trap or mister. You cannot take them along when you are camping, walking, or even on a picnic. They also take time to really see the effects. The best defense for mosquitoes while you're enjoying the outdoors is going to be a good repellent.

Don't automatically think if those harsh chemical sprays or lotions either there is a wide variety of personal repellents and devices for mosquitoes and other flying, biting insects out there today that don't require application or chemicals! They range from traditional sprays to lanterns. While these products are great at repelling mosquitoes they do not actually kill the mosquitoes or reduce your mosquito population. They quickly and effectively create a "bug free" area so you can reclaim your backyard!

Like I mentioned earlier most of the personal repellents on the market now do not contain chemicals, most use Allethrine which is a copy of a repellent that is naturally produced in chrysanthemum flowers and is safe for use around humans and pets. I've got some products here today that I want to introduce you to they are some of my favorite mosquito repellent products that I've used and Love!
